This system of post and pan houses, as they were called, prevailed all over England during the Middle Ages. London was built in this way till the Great Fire destroyed it, and as municipal regulations compelled the houses to be whitewashed every year, it got the name of the White Town. These ages were not altogether dark. The clause in the building lease of every London house, that it shall be painted outside every three years is possibly a survival of this regulation. These houses, however, had the disadvantage of being very combustible. Fires were constantly occurring, and it was enacted that the sheriffs should be provided with a hook for pulling down the houses to stop the fires. One of these hooks attached to a long pole is...
